Winkler's Concerts in the Park return this summer

By Ashleigh Viveiros

The City of Winkler is taking its weekly concerts back outside this summer.

Concerts in the Park returns for eight weeks of Wednesday night shows in Bethel Heritage Park starting July 5.

It follows on the heels of what's proven to be a hugely successful inaugural Concerts in the Hall series, with shows taking place in the P.W. Enns Centennial Concert Hall through the fall and winter months.

"They were very well attended," says community events coordinator Nicole Enns. "Once people caught on that it was happening they knew where to find the information about who was performing and that we'd be there waiting for them."

Enns expects they'll bring that series back next fall. The 2023 edition wraps up with The Committee on Wednesday, May 31 at 7 p.m.

After taking a breather for the month of June, the music moves into the Main St. park with Orlando & Grace on Wednesday, July 5.

They're followed by Three's Company July 12, Young & Haggard July 19, The Seven Pines July 26, L Rae & J Aug. 2, Jakebrakes Aug. 9, Nathan Keys Aug. 16, Brian Jacobs Aug. 23, and The Cracked Eggshell Aug. 30.

It's a mix of local and regional musicians, Enns shares, performing music ranging from country and gospel to classic rock.

"It's a nice chance to get outside and enjoy some local music," she says.

The Bunker and The Ice Cycle will be on hand each week selling food and ice cream. Plans are also in the works to have face painting for the kids select weeks (check the concert hall's social media pages for the dates once they've been firmed up).

Each week will also shine a spotlight on a local non-profit organization.

"We're calling it our Community Stars," Enns says. "Non-profit organizations that want to get the word out about what they're doing for the community."

The shows start weekly at 7 p.m. and usually runs about an hour.

Admission is free. Bring a lawn chair or blanket to sit on.

A thank-you gift for Boundary Trails Health Centre staff

By Lorne Stelmach

The Boundary Trails Health Centre Foundation is hosting staff appreciation days at the regional hospital as part of May being Pay It Forward Month.

Funds generated by the foundation's staff payroll 50/50 program were used to purchase engraved YETI mugs for hospital workers.

They're being handed out over two days to try to catch as many people as possible on different shifts. Foundation executive director Shannon Samatte-Folkett said it's a small gesture to express their gratitude.

"The foundation has really been working over these last few years of difficult times to showcase our health care workers at Boundary Trails Health Centre, let them know that we appreciate them," she said, noting the gift was well-received. "There was some excitement. They didn't know what we were doing, so when they came in the room and saw it, they just lit up. That feedback right there was worth it. That's what we were trying to do, make everybody smile. There was buzz around the hospital.

"These are really good, dedicated people who are working really hard, so here's a little token of our appreciation," Samatte-Folkett added. "I always love when we can do things like this for the staff there."

"It's important to show appreciation for them," agreed Myra Peters, executive director of the Winkler Community Foundation, who was on hand last week to help hand out mugs. "We know that every little encouragement makes a difference in someone's day ... we hope that they continue to pay it forward to someone else and show kindness in some small way."

Samatte Folkett noted the gifts were made possible in part thanks to the generosity of Olympic Source for Sports.

"We can't thank them enough for the support they give to our foundation year after year."

Kerry Smith to run for Liberals in Portage-Lisgar

By Voice staff

The Liberal Party of Canada has announced that Tyndall's Kerry Smith will be running in the Portage-Lisgar by-election on behalf of the party.

The Voice reached out to the Liberal Party to facilitate an interview with Smith but had not received a response by press time Monday.

A bio provided by the party characterizes Smith, who is the senior director of the Manitoba Métis Federation, as being instrumental in helping Indigenous families and youth pursue greater opportunities.

She currently leads a province-wide employment and training department that plays a central role in developing youth leadership and promoting Métis culture.

Smith has also been appointed to the Future Skills Council, providing advice on emerging skills and workforce trends.

"Kerry is committed to advocating for the needs of Portage-Lisgar," the bio notes. "As a Member of Parliament, she will work with Justin Trudeau and the Liberal team to keep Canada moving forward and continue to make life more affordable, grow a strong economy and deliver well-paying middle class jobs, advance reconciliation, and build a fairer and more inclusive Canada."

The Portage-Lisgar by-election takes place on June 19. Currently in the running is Smith, People's Party of Canada candidate Maxime Bernier, and the Conservative Party of Canada's Branden Leslie.

Dick Remus honoured with Lt.-Gov award

By Ashleigh Viveiros

Emerson's own Dick Remus was honoured last week for his years of dedication to the preservation and promotion of local history.

Lieutenant-Governor Anita Neville presented Remus with one of four Historical Preservation and Promotion awards at a ceremony in Winnipeg May 18.

Also recognized was Doug Evans of Winnipeg, Nelson Gerrard of Arborg, and Mackenzie Stewart of Clandeboye.

"It is such a pleasure to celebrate the contributions of today's honourees and their tireless dedication in preserving and promoting the history of this great province," Neville said in a statement. "Through the creation of events and programs to engage with communities large and small, the writing of books for the benefit of future generations, and so much more, these outstanding individuals ensure Manitoba's rich history is kept alive."

All of the honourees were recommended by the Manitoba Historical Society, who receives nominations from the public year-round and then selects up to five people for the Lt.-Gov. to consider.

MHS head researcher Gordon Goldsborough noted it's always a tough decision—they received a couple dozen nominees this year alone.

"I've often said that you could justify giving an award to each and every nominee because they're all doing wonderful work," he said. "And the work they do is incredibly diverse ... some of them work in museums and archives, some of them write books, some of them compose songs, paint paintings, advocate on behalf of heritage buildings."

Remus was selected because of his involvement with the Post Road Heritage Group, which maintains the Fort Emerson's Dick Remus (far right) accepting the Historical Preservation and Promotion Award from Lieutenant Governor Anita Neville and Manitoba Historical Society's Gordon Goldsborough last week. Remus has been a longtime volunteer with the Post Road Heritage Group and the Fort Dufferin historical site.

Dufferin National Historic Site north of Emerson.

He headed up the group's board of directors for over 20 years and is still, at the age of 92, involved as an active member today.

"His work with Fort Dufferin goes back decades," Goldsborough said. "Any time I've been there, he's been there volunteering ... any job that needs to be done, he's the go-to guy to do it."

Over the years, Remus has had a hand in several major milestone events at the Fort, including those commemorating the 125th anniversary of the North West Mounted Police in 1999 and the 125th anniversary of the arrival of Mennonites to Manitoba's West Reserve in 2000.

He's been integral in the creation of an interpretive centre at Fort Dufferin based on a restored historic building and the development of the walking trail along the Red River, and has given countless presentations and tours of and about the site, often in period costume.

Remus said on Friday that news of the award came completely out of the blue.

"The first thing I knew about it was when I received a phone call from the Lieutenant Governor," he said. "I guess our Post Road Heritage Group was the one that nominated me, and I thank them profusely for that."

He's quick to point out that every one of the group's dedicated volunteers deserves to be recognized.

"I would say every one of those people that work with our group is as deserving as I am," Remus said, stressing that generations of volunteers have had a hand in preserving and promoting Fort Dufferin.

His own interest in local history started at a young age.

"I grew up at Dufferin School, a little country school not that far from Fort Dufferin," Remus shared. "We heard all about this fort and we had a visit there once where we were shown some broken clay pipes that we were told were discarded by people that used to live there."

The fort has a lot of history behind it, serving as the headquarters for the North American Boundary Commission surveying the 49th parallel and as the assembly point for the North West Mounted Police's "March West" in 1874 when they set out to what is now Alberta to establish additional posts on the Canadian frontier.

It then served as an immigration station for tens of thousands of settlers who arrived in Manitoba in the late 1800s bound for lands to the west.

"It's a very important site with a lot of history," Remus said, urging people to come check it out on their own (there's a self-guided walking tour you can take) or stop by their Heritage Day festivities this fall.

MB gov't announces Building Sustainable Communities funding

By Lorne Stelmach

A variety of projects around the region are benefitting from the Building Sustainable Communities program.

The Manitoba government last week announced the investment of over $25 million through the program to support 428 community development projects throughout the province.

The grants are to be matched by the organizations or municipalities involved in the projects, but receiving up to 50 per cent of the eligible costs makes a significant difference.

"We simply couldn't do it without the support of the Manitoba government and Building Sustainable Communities," said Barbara Biggar, who was involved in landing a $117,118 grant for the Nellie McClung Heritage Site in Manitou for upgrades to the McClung House.

"It absolutely makes a huge difference in terms of how quickly projects can move ahead," noted Henry Siemens, mayor of Winkler, which received grants of $72,372 for Lion's Park upgrades and $150,000 for phase one of the pathway between Winkler and Reinfeld.

In Morden, the Canadian Fossil Discovery Centre received $62,075 for equipment upgrades.

"It is thanks to this kind of support that we can improve our mission to preserve and research our Manitoba heritage and to reach as much public as possible now and in the future," noted executive director Adolfo Cuetara.

The Building Sustainable Communities program commitment of $25 million was doubled from last year to increase support for community projects.

It was launched four years ago to offer municipalities and non-profit organizations a new program that streamlined administrative processes and reduced red tape, replacing several other funding programs.

"The idea of it was to consolidate some of the other projects and the other funding streams into one so that municipalities and community groups across the province could have one place to go and apply for funding," Municipal Relations Minister Andrew Smith said in announcing the recipients last week.

"Locally developed projects are, by design, tailored to address their community's specific, unique needs and opportunities," he continued. "Our government is pleased to continue supporting community-based projects that foster thriving, sustainable neighbourhoods and improve residents' quality of life."

The Building Sustainable Communities grant program supports planning activities, organizational capacity building projects, equipment costs, capital infrastructure and other local or regional initiatives that enhance the sustainability of communities.

Projects can receive up to 50 per cent toward eligible costs. The maximum grant for projects in the regular stream is $75,000, while larger-scale capital projects can receive up to $300,000.

"The program is making a remarkable difference in communities province-wide," suggested Smith. "From installing play structures to creating outdoor recreation spaces to renovating community centres, these projects make communities healthier, stronger and more competitive."

"WE'RE EXTREMELY APPRECIATIVE"

"As a community, we're extremely appreciative of these dollars and the fact they've contributed to projects that we believe are very worthwhile," Mayor Siemens said.

He also welcomed grants for The Bunker for youth centre upgrades and the Winkler Whips baseball team for its diamond upgrades.

"Both of those are really good and help to build community," said Siemens, who especially cited the Whips for their efforts on the improvements at Arctic Field. "They have put lots of sweat equity into it and lots of fundraising. They are building a first-rate diamond."

"We're really glad to receive these grants," said RM of Stanley Reeve Ike Friesen, who welcomed news of a $123,616 grant for a municipal pathway project and $68,304 for Stanley

Why talk when you can fight?

Everywhere I look it feels as if the idea of diplomacy is something old-fashioned these days, as though it was a skillset of a bygone time now seen as naïve and useless in our modern era of right vs. wrong.

Even locally it has felt for a very long time that the concept of dialogue has been discarded in favor of pre-determining how “the other side” would respond and going straight to Cold War tactics.

Oxford defines diplomacy in a couple of ways, one political and the other in terms of people. The definition I want to focus on which states that diplomacy is the “skill in dealing with people in difficult situations without upsetting or offending them.”

By Peter Cantelon

These days a person attempting to operate by such a rule would be dismissed as “woke.”

I am thinking about these things because I am nearly finished reading Ronan Farrow’s astounding book War on Peace: The End of Diplomacy and the Decline of American Influence. A truly remarkable overview of the erosion of diplomacy across three key presidencies—Clinton, Obama and Trump—in favour of the military and proxy war approach, i.e. conflict over conversation.

Everything these days seems to be conflict. There is no such thing as discourse seeking compromise because to compromise in today’s culture is to lose.

In these days of instantaneous outrage there is no room for a respectful conversation, only angry monologue at one-another. Even our wonderful media (of which I am a part) acts frustratingly to support this divisiveness by zeroing in on negative voices, however few on a variety of issues.

Heck, CTV decided it was newsworthy to cover the City of Morden’s decision to create a cool festival space on a tiny half-block in its core because as many as possibly 10 people out of 10,000 had voiced “concern.”

This kind of irresponsible journalism lends a megaphone to tiny outraged groups of people which enables other tiny outraged groups of other people to press their own issues and try to bully others into giving in to them.

When we lean away from dialogue and compromise we create a healthy atmosphere for conflict. When we focus overtly on small segments of a population simply because they are loud we skew perception amongst decision makers, leading them to make panic-based decisions that do not nec-

YOU HAVE THE RIGHT TO BE THERE

Yes, Ms. Cox, you do have the right to be at the table since 1916 when women won the right to vote in Manitoba [“Cox says she’s been wrongly removed from RM of Thompson council”, Voice, May 11, Pg. 17]

Ms. Cox was elected by the residents in her ward by 48 per cent. She also came to council with 12 years of service on the school board. Eminently qualified and obviously well thought of in the community.

Just like in St. Andrews, male councillors stripped their mayor of her powers. The appeal court of Manitoba found these councillors crossed the line and again restored the powers of the mayor. By the way, the mayor was a woman and the first women elected to that position in the RM of St. Andrews. Their claim was that the mayor needed to be a better person. In this case [it’s that] Ms. Cox isn’t a good fit.

Here is another council usurping democracy. Changing the time of the meetings to hamper her attendance is bullying.

What’s the financial cost to the community if a by-election needs to be called? What is the cost to com-

Regional Connections receives funding boost

By Ashleigh Viveiros

Continued funding support from the Manitoba government's Newcomer Community Integration Support (NCIS) program was welcome news to Regional Connections Immigrant Services last week.

Labour and Immigration Minister Jon Reyes announced the province is providing $4 million to 24 newcomer service organizations through the funding program's Newcomer Community Connections Stream.

"Attracting and retaining new immigrants has been identified as a key factor in Manitoba's post-pandemic economic recovery," Reyes said.

"This funding supports our government's vision of a skilled and talented Manitoba, a key component of which is to welcome newcomers and ensure they are able to participate fully in the community and contribute to a growing economy."

Regional Connections received $245,700 through the program, shares executive director Steve Reynolds.

"This is a funding renewal for us [not new funding], but we did get a little more than we did last year," he said. "So that's good, because it's needed."

The funds will be used to support programming across all four of Regional Connections' offices in Winkler, Morden, Altona, and Dauphin.

Client numbers are on the rise across their service areas, Reynolds notes, so every single dollar is needed to continue to provide immigrants with the help they need to integrate into their new homes.

The agency offers settlement services, English and literacy classes, employment services, and a variety of community integration programs for newcomers.

The bulk of their funding comes from the federal government, but those dollars are earmarked for permanent residents (immigrants who are living here permanently but are not Canadian citizens).

"That leaves a lot of people out," Reynolds says. "We have about a thousand clients a year who are not permanent residents, but they have the same needs. We see a lot of temporary foreign workers, seasonal workers, and people who have gotten Canadian citizenship as newcomers but might still have something come up they need help with."

This funding, then, helps eliminate "a pretty big gap," Reynolds says. "Without it, about a thousand people a year who need these services wouldn't be able to get them, just because of their immigration status."

"Our goal is for anybody who needs support, they should be able to access it."

Regional Connections had a record-setting year in 2022, with 1,561 new arrivals accessing their programming (its overall client numbers are about three times that, as newcomers from previous years continue to make use of their services).

"We're on pace for lots of new people this year too," Reynolds says. "Basically as long as there's still jobs available and people are hiring, people will keep coming."

munity pride and good stewardship? What's the message to future generations about community service?

Maybe the mayor and council are not fit to be there. By these actions they are proving they are not worthy of office. They just want power. This is not in the best interests of her ward or the RM as a whole.

A NOTE OF APPRECIATION

Peter Cantelon, we enjoyed your column again immensely [Fear and Loathing in the Pembina Valley, Voice, May 18, Pg. 6].

Had some hearty chuckles and, yep, I think you've hit a lot of nails right on their heads!

Keep on keeping us up with all that's important and not so important in our little bubble called Pembina Valley.

Ellie & Neil Reimer,
Winkler

A NOTE OF FRUSTRATION

Your letter policy states to keep letters respectful.

I fully support freedom of speech, and as such Mr. Cantelon may say what he wishes on political views, beliefs, etc. But as readers can we not expect the Voice to uphold its own standards?

Mr. Cantelon's columns clearly show his opinions leaning to one political view, which is absolutely fine. In recent years, the expressed opinions are deteriorating into mockings and put-downs of groups of people that he doesn't agree with. This last week's headline of Fear and Loathing in the Pembina Valley are a clear example of this.

Mr. Cantelon has a unique position with the ability to freely write a commentary. Most citizens will never get that opportunity. Is it not fair to ask to use this position as a place of respect and responsibility? What would happen if you mocked marginalized groups? Would the staff at the Voice finally edit the editorial?

I don't want to see any group or individual mocked, belittled or devalued, not in my day to day life and not in my community paper. Might the staff of a community paper add writers with a variety of viewpoints to represent an entire community?

Tanya Guenther,
Morden

Investing in Manitoba's Natural Wonders

Manitoba's 92 provincial parks offer Manitobans and visitors an abundance of scenic beauty and recreational opportunities.

To ensure future generations have the opportunity to enjoy all that provincial parks have to offer, the Manitoba government is making a historic $220 million investment over the next 10 years.

Creating Extraordinary Visitor Experiences

This significant investment will support projects across the province and in your area, including:

- Lakeview Trail upgrades in Birds Hill Provincial Park
- Supplying electrical power to campsites at Gull Harbour Hecla/Grindstone Provincial Park
- Campsite electrical upgrades in Stephenfield Provincial Park

Significant amounts of money will also go towards renewal projects in provincial roads and highways to improve access to, around and within provincial parks.

Spring planting well underway: local producers

By Lorne Stelmach

There is optimism among farmers this spring as they get to work on their fields and get going on seeding.

Overall, producers started to make significant progress over the last week with their field work, and warm temperatures and adequate soil moisture could mean crops could be emerging rapidly in the coming weeks.

“Every spring, it’s always an optimistic time ... we’re looking forward to see what will be produced. I think we’re quite hopeful with the conditions,” said Wayne Derksen of Hespeler Farms.

“This year is a little more normal,” noted Marlon Kuhl of Southern Potato. “It’s a little later than ideal, but we saw a later seeding last year, later than this year actually, and we had a really, really good crop, so I don’t think there’s any reason for any concern about being a little bit later than normal.”

Manitoba Agriculture’s crop report last week estimated the seeding progress provincially was at about 25 per cent completion.

Recent warm weather was allowing progress to move ahead at a more rapid pace, the report said, and producers were able to seed most fields. That’s in contrast to the week before, when producers had to be more selective on which field to plant due to wet soil conditions.

Cereal plantings are expected to wrap up towards the end of the week, the report continued, and soybean and canola seeding is expected to increase, while corn planting was at 15 per cent complete and is expected to increase as the week progresses.

For the most part, seeding was continuing at a fast and steady pace, with Carman and Roland areas further advanced in seeding than regions on the escarpment and heavier soils around Altona and along the Red River. Due to recent rains, many producers in those areas had yet to start seeding.

“We’re starting a little bit later than usual, but moisture conditions are very good, and temperatures have been absolutely great,” said Derksen. “The soil is nice, and I think the crops are going to come up very quickly once we get going, once we get everything planted.”

“It’s certainly been interesting the last few years,” he reflected, going from extreme drought to flood conditions the next. “This is actually shaping up a lot like last year when we had quite a wet spring and everything was a bit later, but it turned out very well.”

“We’re hopeful that this year can also be a very good year,” Derksen continued, noting Hespeler Farms is planting corn, wheat, barley, soybeans, and potatoes.

“Right now we’re able to have all units running, which is great, but we’re still finding a couple wet spots on some fields, but in most spots, we’re able to plant corner to corner at this time,” he said.

“With the nice warm temperatures we’re getting, I think things are going to pop out of the ground, which will help us out and help us catch up. Other years it’s maybe been that we started earlier, but it’s been cold and wet and the crop hasn’t really progressed.”

“So I’m very hopeful we’ll have a great start with lots of moisture ... and I think the crops have as good a potential as a normal year.”

“Things are progressing well. Over the last week, we were slowed down a little bit by the rain, but overall we’re making good progress,” agreed Kuhl.

“The early crops are already emerging and are off to a really good start,” he said. “The conditions are for the most part really good. It’s a little wet in certain areas ... the conditions are good for drying lately, and things are looking really good.”

Bernier wants to reopen abortion debate in Canada

By Ashleigh Viveiros

If elected to a seat in Parliament in the Portage-Lisgar by-election next month, People’s Party of Canada (PPC) candidate Maxime Bernier intends to reopen the abortion debate in Canada.

Bernier announced his stance on the topic at a press conference in Winkler last week, pledging to table the Protection of Preborn Children Act, a private member’s bill to amend Section 287 of the Criminal Code, as soon as possible should he take office. The bill was written by Laura-Lynn Tyler Thompson and Paul Mitchell, both of whom ran unsuccessfully for the PPC in Alberta in the 2019 election.

“The bill would limit the legal availability of abortion to 24 weeks maximum, and outlaw late-term abortions unless the mother’s life or health are at risk, there has been rape or abuse, or if the baby has a lethal abnormality or no brain function,” Bernier said, lamenting the fact there is no current law regulating abortion in Canada.

“Our governments regulate almost everything in our lives, including such ridiculous things like plastic straws,” he said. “But there is a complete legal void when it comes to killing unborn human beings.”

The Supreme Court of Canada ruled in 1988 that the abortion provision in the Criminal Code was unconstitutional because it violated women’s rights under section 7 of the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms to security of the person (R. v. Morgentaler). Prior to this decision, women had to receive approval from the therapeutic abortion committee of an accredited hospital before receiving an abortion.

“Because of this legal void, there is no legal obstacle in Canada to have an abortion at any stage in the pregnancy—including in theory up to minutes before a child is born,” Bernier said. “Freedom is one of my core values. But it doesn’t include supporting the freedom of a mother to kill her fully developed baby, before or after it is born.”

He noted some people would like to see even further restrictions on abortions, as is the case in other countries, and he agrees that should be discussed, but “we need to start somewhere.”

Bernier, who is the leader of the PPC nationally, stressed his party “welcomes a debate on abortion.”

essarily reflect the silent and assenting majority.

Diplomacy leading to compromise is not a scenario where everyone loses. If it avoids conflict in favour of peaceful resolution then everyone wins.

But diplomacy requires intentional and knowing relationship. This is one of its key benefits. The stronger a relationship, the more we know someone, the harder it is to enter into hurtful and divisive conflict.

How many times have I heard leaders in both

Morden and Winkler pre-determine the other community’s response to an issue and skip the conversation altogether on key issues that would benefit from compromise? Too many to count. Assumption is the enemy of diplomacy and the friend of division.

Unfortunately it is easier to simply shout down a perspective we fear. No relationship is required for conflict. No relationship is required for hate.

Pen pal program continues to bridge generations

By Voice staff

Students from Emerado Centennial School were at the Winkler Senior Centre last week for a final meet-up with their elder pen pals.

The Senior Pen Pal program teams up older adults with Gr. 5/6 students to exchange letters throughout the school year.

“Seeing the kids smile and laugh with their senior pen pals honestly brings me so much joy,” says teacher Tasha Roberts. “I tell people all the time that this program is one of my favorite parts of my English Language Arts programming and I couldn’t be more proud of this group of kids for how well they participated.”

The get-together last week saw the

REDress Project returns to the Pembina Valley

By Lorne Stelmach

An initiative aimed at honouring and bringing attention to the issue of Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women and Girls and 2 Spirited People has been touring the region.

This is now the third year for the Pembina Valley REDress Project, and organizers are encouraged that it continues to get such a good response from communities.

“What we’re finding is people want more action this year,” committee member Denise Unrau Thiessen said in advance of the display appearing in the Morden Park last Saturday.

“I think potentially it’s because we’re hearing more of it in the news, that it’s still occurring. It’s a closer reality to people that is happening to families near us,” she suggested. “People want to do something about it, which is really great to see. It is encouraging, definitely.”

Created by Winnipeg artist Jaimie Black, the REDress project plays an important role in recognizing this ongoing issue that touches both our nation and local communities right here in the Pembina Valley.

Black has described REDress as an art project based on an aesthetic response to a critical national issue, and it serves as a visual reminder of the staggering number of women who are no longer with us.

Through the installation displaying a variety of red dresses, she hopes to draw attention to the gendered and racialized nature of violent crimes against aboriginal women and to evoke a presence through the marking of the absence.

The Pembina Valley exhibit featuring over 100 clothing items this year has already made stops in Swan Lake, Pilot Mound, Carman, and now Morden.

It will be in Winkler in Bethel Heritage Park this Saturday, in Altona Park this Sunday, and then in Killarney June 3 before a repeat stop in Morden June 24 for Indigenous People’s Day.

Thiessen has been pleased with the response from the communities so far.

In Pilot Mound, United Community Arts had organizers take over its Instagram for the day. They also provided snacks, drinks and a homemade lunch and had a fire and provided wood all day long.

In Carman, the chamber of commerce challenged their community to put up red dresses in their windows as displays, and almost every business participated.

And at Swan Lake First Nation, they were invited to the MMIWG2s honour ceremony, where they spoke and put the display on their pow wow grounds. Organizers were also invited to partake in a community feast.

“It is a pretty powerful display,” said Thiessen, who ultimately hopes it helps generate continued dialogue. “What we really hope is just that people are open to learn and they feel comfortable enough not only to walk through it but to come and ask us questions.

“We don’t learn and others don’t learn if we don’t ask questions, and so we’re open to those questions as long as people are open about it as well,” she noted. “It’s a two way street, and we’re seeing that this year. We’re seeing people talking more and asking more, which is good, even the hard questions ... this is a good place to do that, a safe place.”

> GRANTS, FROM PG. 5

Park upgrades. In addition, the Reinfeld park committee received $135,802 for its park development project.

Friesen explained that Stanley Park will get a new bridge over the creek as well as some new signage and path lighting. The other grant is for the municipal pathway from Reinfeld and will help extend it further towards connecting it to Winkler.

“This certainly makes it all more possible,” said Friesen. “All of these projects are going to be really good for community and just having the opportunity to enjoy it all more.”

The funding for the McClung House will allow for a major retrofit and full refurbishment of the interior of the building, which was built in 1899 and at no point has really had any major work done on the interior.

“We will be upgrading it really from a one-season museum and facility to a three-season, so we will be adding heating and cooling, which will really extend our season overall,” said Biggar.

“We see this as really securing McClung House for the future,” she said. “It’s going to be a real game changer for us in terms of being able to really reinvigorate that home and secure it for the long term future.”

Cuetara explained the CFDC grant is a 50 per cent contribution towards a total cost of $124,150 to purchase a 3D scanner, 3D printer, and a powerful dedicated computer to handle the software.

The museum has also applied to the Canada Cultural Spaces Fund to match this contribution, so they hope to be able to put together both grants to acquire this technology.

“All the fossil specimens hosted at the CFDC are incomplete, which is something normal in any palaeontology museum,” said Cuetara. “Making available a 3D scanner and printer is fundamental to be able to reconstruct whole skulls or skeletons.

“The possibilities of this technology for the CFDC are endless, especially for research, creation of new displays, fabrication of replicas or collaboration with other museums, like the Miami Museum.”

Morden's Multicultural Winterfest organizers brought people together Friday evening for a multicultural dance at the Access Event Centre. About a half dozen representatives of different cultural groups led people through various dances, including many traditional routines. The idea arose from the Winterfest changing to a different format with separate pavilions this year. "We were kind of missing some of that all together fun, and this was an idea that would bring back that idea of all cultures being together," said Shelly Voth, immigration co-ordinator for the City of Morden and a representative of the Winterfest organizing committee.

Why I Quit the Conservative Party, and why you should, too.

On August 23rd, 2018, I left the Conservative Party. Three weeks later, I founded the People's Party of Canada. At the time, I was fifty-five years old. Most men at that age are happy to settle down and enjoy the tail-end of their professional careers.

The question, then, people kept asking me was: "Why, Max?"

It's very simple. The Conservative Party — and its predecessor, the Progressive Conservative Party — has lacked principles and guts for decades. Not since John Diefenbaker's time has there been a true conservative vision in that Party.

Today, our children are indoctrinated in the classroom into a dangerous transgender ideology which confuses and sexualizes them. It didn't appear out of nowhere. It's happening because the Conservatives let it happen. They are too afraid of being called 'bigots' by their opponents.

As a father myself, I know how important traditional families are to our communities and our country; they form the very bedrock of our nation.

Portage-Lisgar deserves a strong voice for families in the House of Commons: one that will fight tirelessly against the onslaught of the Woke Cult in our schools, institutions, and corporate media. We know the Conservatives won't do it.

On June 19th, I urge you to vote for your values. Vote for something, not against something.

Sincerely,

Maxime Bernier
Leader and Candidate for Portage-Lisgar

Oba Yo a new option for farm-to-table eating

By Lorne Stelmach

A new farm-to-table eatery located in Morden inside the kitchen at Rendezvous Brewery represents a dream come true for Mathew Vetten.

The Oba Yo kitchen is committed to sustainability and the use of local food sources while both celebrating and promoting the local food culture, and Vetten is grateful for Rendezvous helping to make it happen.

"We owe everything to Rendezvous," said Vetten, who suggested they likely couldn't have gotten their idea off the ground without being able to step into an already established location that had a great reputation and was a real draw for people. "They were super supportive. We structured out a deal that was really beneficial for us in helping us get started."

Something like Oba Yo was likely always in the cards for Vetten, who has been involved in restaurants since about age 18 when he started as a cook in Penticton, B.C.

"Right from that moment, I knew that I wanted to open up a restaurant one day. I was working there with my best friend at the time, and he was going to run the back and I was going to run the front," he shared. "Pretty much everywhere I moved and everywhere I've lived since for the past 18 years, I've always been in restaurants."

"I learned a lot, and I would get to know the chefs," he said, recalling especially one in Edmonton. "I knew that I had finally found the restaurant that I would want to base my concept around because it was totally farm to table. Everything was locally sourced, and they made everything from scratch. They would do everything in house. If they couldn't get it, they just wouldn't put it on the menu."

Vetten then met his wife Leni Zacharias in Victoria; she was originally from Morden, and he told her that he would be up for living in rural Manitoba.

"We came out here to visit and she taught me about the term 'oba yo' ... it's an exclamation," he explained, noting that he then connected the dots and saw that as a name for his vision of a restaurant.

"It just kind of all fell into place," said Zacharias. "For me, it's mostly about growing up here and also having a love for cooking and food. I always helped my mom in the kitchen, and I continuously worked in kitchens while I was here and also in B.C."

Caylie and Grant Nicholson of Rendezvous pitched the idea of Vetten and Zacharias running their kitchen, but Vetten initially turned them down.

Next came Vetten doing an experiment and being curious how it might go over if he offered up a Mennonite inspired soup. He ended up selling 20 litres at $15 each and $5 for delivery in just two days.

"When I saw that kind of reaction, I just knew there was something to this idea," he said. "It showed me that even just something as simple as really good soup, there was a need for it here, just really good home cooked food."

Leni Zacharias and Matthew Vetten have started up Oba Yo kitchen out of Morden's Rendezvous.

He started doing a lunch menu then at Rendezvous. By the end of the year, it was proposed that they take over the kitchen. They agreed.

"I've only been here about five months now, and Morden has just been such an incredibly supportive community in helping us," Vetten said.

Their aim is to offer a diverse menu influenced by Mennonite cuisine but enhanced with French techniques and a touch of Asian fusion to offer a unique culinary experience.

They plan to present monthly menus that showcase the best of what local producers have to offer. They are also looking to launch the Oba Yo hot dog cart with a fresh take on a beloved classic.

Vetten sees them as capitalizing on a trend where people are mindful of what they are consuming, where their food comes from, and how it is prepared.

"That's what Oba Yo really hopes to do is educate people on the bounty of produce and everything that is available so close to us," he said.

"We've been asked several times if we would open up a breakfast place, and that's a hundred per cent what the next goal is—to have our own brick and mortar place."

GVSD board approves new five-year capital plan

By Ashleigh Viveiros

Garden Valley School Division has no shortage of improvement projects on the horizon.

The board of trustees have approved a new five-year capital plan that focuses heavily on addressing needs at aging school facilities across the division.

"A lot of the focus on this five-year capital plan is on renovations and some needed structural repairs," says superintendent Dan Ward. "Over the last few years there's been a huge emphasis on new school builds, the most recent being Pine Ridge School."

Lobbying for, planning, building, and finally opening a brand new school takes up a great deal of administrative time, Ward noted, so this break in the need for new facilities is a welcome one.

"With no new schools on the horizon, at least in the near future, that definitely gives our division an opportunity to look at some of the projects that are needed," he said. "Especially considering that a lot of our schools are aging. They're getting to a point where we need to ensure that we invest robustly in those schools so that they're here for years to come and serve our students well."

The new capital plan, which will be submitted to the Province for approval and project funding, is extensive, with maintenance projects and upgrades both large and small at just about every school.

"A LOT OF THE FOCUS ... IS ON RENOVATIONS AND SOME NEEDED STRUCTURAL REPAIRS."

Some of the big items on the to-do list include those for Garden Valley Collegiate and J.R. Walkof School.

The link at the elementary school between the main building and its cluster of portable classrooms has degraded over the years.

"There is a lack of proper drainage there and so that link is really not in good shape," Ward said. "It either needs to be fully renovated or replaced based on what the engineers and architects would recommend."

Meanwhile, at GVC, the foundation piles beneath the automotive shop need to be reinforced.

"Although it's not something that folks will see day to day, it's needed to keep that shop viable for years to come," Ward said.

GVSD is also looking at how it can make its schools more accessible, with projects that include widening the entrance doors at Parkland Elemen-

Soccer families raise funds, supplies for PVHS

By Lorne Stelmach

The Pembina Valley Soccer League recently kicked off its 2023 season by calling on its families and supporters to help assist a community organization.

The league in conjunction with RuffMutts held a supply drive for the Pembina Valley Humane Society May 16 in conjunction with a game night taking place in Morden.

"We have more than a hundred kids this year compared to last year when we had 60, so we needed to add four or more teams, and we were looking for a few more sponsors," said league organizer Nuno Sousa.

"But I believe you should not just be asking, you should be giving too," he added. "So at the same time, we're not just asking from the community, we're also giving back."

"We're just helping out and seeing what we can do to support the humane society," said Guy Britten of RuffMutts.

"Whenever we can, we want to help out the local rescues. We try to maintain a close relationship with Pembina Valley and even with local sports teams, we want to be involved. This year, we sponsored one of the teams."

"RuffMutts is a huge supporter of us with a lot of different events and fundraisers. They're donating a year's supply of pet food for our walkathon, so we really appreciate all that they do for us. It also gives us a chance to bring an adoptable dog out here to meet people," said Tanya Rempel, humane society sponsor chairperson.

"This helps to get our name out there. Even social media is a great way, but not everyone is on social media, and there's a lot of newcomers to the community who don't know about us, so the more we can get out in the community, the better."

Sousa added that doing something

Cracked surface at Lion's park tennis courts getting repaired

By Ashleigh Viveiros

The aging tennis courts at Lion's park in Winkler are getting a face lift this summer.

Director of community services Jordan Driedger says work is slated to begin on a refurbishment of the two courts in the Lion Fred Rietze Memorial Park in mid-July.

"That's one of our bigger projects for the summer," he says, noting the repairs will take four to six weeks.

"The biggest thing there is the surface is starting to crack, making it challenging to play on ... it's a safety concern," Driedger explains. The plan is to rip out the existing court surface to redo the base and then add a new crack-free top layer.

With the new surface in place, lines will be painted not only for two tennis courts but also six pickleball courts.

"One tennis court will have four pickleball courts on it, and then the other will have two, so that can allow for some shared play to happen,"

Driedger says.

While the work is being done, tennis players will still have the courts beside the Winkler Aquatic Centre to play on.

Those courts are showing their age as well, Driedger notes, but until a decision is made about potential improvements at the neighbouring campground there are no firm plans to refurbish them.

"That one is a conversation for the future," he says. "One day we may want to upgrade the campground, so that would put those tennis courts into that conversation."

"We've looked at the potential of new courts in a different location as well," Driedger adds. "But right now we're putting our focus on getting the Lion's park courts up to standards."

City staff will also be busy with a few other recreation improvement projects this summer, including upkeep and improvements to some of the Parkland ball diamonds and ongoing planning for the Winkler Centennial Arena upgrades.

tary School, replacing the 30-year-old elevator at Winkler Elementary School, and installing a ramp going into the GVC gymnasium.

Other items include finishing off the exterior upgrades at WES, addressing the aging gym floor at Southwood School, and exterior upgrades at GVC.

"Those are the big ones," Ward said, noting there are also a litany of relatively smaller projects dealing with roof repairs and system replacements.

"A lot of air handling units and boilers—many of our schools are on that list, including Plum Coulee, Parkland, Southwood," he said. "It's a range of projects in terms of bringing systems to modern standards."

When or if funding approval will be given for these projects by the Province is up in the air. In the meantime, GVSD has a list of already approved projects it hopes to tackle while classes are out for the summer

That includes improvements to the ventilation systems at Hochfeld School and Blumenfeld School, the replacement of a chiller (part of the mechanical system) at Parkland, a new boiler for J.R. Walkof, and roof upgrades on the GVC gymnasium.

The value of these summer projects is approaching $2 million.

arts & culture

PHAC looks to the future

By Ashleigh Viveiros

It was a year characterized as a slow return to normal, and now the Pembina Hills Arts Council hopes to build momentum as it moves into the future.

"The past year was one of both continued challenges post-pandemic but also one of hope and growth as we returned to normal, and it has presented the opportunity for programs, activities, classes and activities to resume and for people to return to our gallery space," board chair Lorne Stelmach, who will continue in the role for a second term, shared in his report at PHAC's May 16 annual general meeting.

Staffing turnover created some upheaval, he noted, as two key administrative employees pursued other opportunities.

Things have stabilized in the months since, with Liza Isakov coming on board as the new administrative coordinator, joining Dani Johnson as gallery assistant, and Tye Dandridge-Evancio as programs, outreach, and exhibitions coordinator.

"They all have helped us start to move forward again, so I give full credit to them for making a significant contribution to the arts council," Stelmach said.

With pandemic restrictions gone, the gallery was able to slowly but surely resume its programming through 2022.

Many of the art classes—especially the children's programs—have been very well received, Stelmach said, and plans are in the works to continue to grow those offerings.

"It's encouraging to me that things have picked up," he noted in an interview after the meeting. "But it has been a challenge for various reasons—in some cases we're limited with space and capacity. And some people are still not entirely comfortable with [public gatherings] yet. But it is definitely picking up and we've been adding some new programs and workshops. We want to continue building in that direction."

Financially, PHAC is on solid footing, ending the fiscal year with a deficit of about $14,000. Increased government support coupled with low operational costs through the pandemic means they had money in the bank to absorb that loss.

"We actually benefitted during the pandemic, surprisingly enough," Stelmach said, explaining it gives them a bit of a cushion as they work to more fully get back into the swing of things.

"It is something that we need to remain vigilant about moving ahead," he noted in his report. "Our key challenge will be to improve and step up our fundraising and marketing as well as to boost other sources of revenue such as other grants and promoting memberships."

"Of utmost importance, though, moving forward, will be continuing to involve and engage our communities in our arts and culture sector and particularly embracing and highlighting our diversity, as it is an absolutely vital part of the fabric of our community and region."

They're always looking for new ways to connect with people, Stelmach stressed.

"That's very much one focus that we have right now. Just getting more people through the doors who normally otherwise might not be coming into the gallery."

PHAC welcomed nearly 3,000 visitors in 2022, hosted 11 exhibitions, facilitated more than 30 different multi-week or one-off art workshops and classes, organized or took part in over a dozen community events, and ended the year with 74 dues-paying members.

"Overall, I'm happy with how things seem to be kind of rebuilding and returning to normal," Stelmach said in reflecting on the numbers. "We're seeing our programs and activities pick up, more people starting to come through the door. We have a good variety of exhibits happening, and we're attracting interest from other groups and sectors in the community."

"I think all that combined can help push us in the right direction moving forward."

The PHAC board includes as returning members Stelmach, Michelle Stelmach, Kevin Wiens, Ken Friesen, Julia Toews, and Cyndy Kutzner. They welcomed new members Denise Thiessen and Kim Goodine.

"See No Evil" performs at the Kenmor next month

By Lorne Stelmach

A new theatre company based in southeast Manitoba is bringing its first major show to Morden-Winkler next month.

See No Evil is the first big production from Looking Glass Theatre, and the co-creators see this classic Alfred Hitchcock inspired story as being filled with charms and chills in equal measure.

"It's a suspense thriller, so it's a mixture of mystery and suspense, but there's also a lot of laughs in the show," said Marc Moir, who together with Laura Kathleen Turner is a driving force behind Looking Glass.

"And it's a period piece, so the costumes are really fun, and the music is really fun. The staging of it all is quite an experience when you come to see it," added Turner.

Moir is best known for his award-winning hit play Padre X, while actress and singer/songwriter Turner's work includes a principal role in the film The Science Fiction Makers and co-creating the musical When You're a Star.

Creating Looking Glass is something that Moir and Turner had in mind for some time now as they saw a void to be filled in that region of the province.

"We've both done theatre for many years, and we've wanted for a couple years now to start a professional theatre company that's based in southeastern Manitoba," said Moir, who is based in the Steinbach area along with Turner. "So we brought together a company of actors who are either already professional actors or they're up and coming and working towards that being their vocation."

"This show is kind of us sticking our feet in the water ... it's in the early stages, but we're very excited with where we are; everything has gone really well so far," he added. "There's a huge market. It really is a theatre community. People love theatre here ... there was no real professional theatre."

It brings together a talented collective of young up-and-coming artists, many of whom are local to Southern Manitoba, noted Turner, and they look forward to offering theatre fans an exciting combination of classic and original works.

"There's brand new talent, brand new creators, and it's made up of people who are known from their community."

The story is set on the evening of a first wedding anniversary when Mary's husband tells her that he plans to murder her and that he has killed seven times before. Or does he? Is Russell a serial killer, or is Mary the victim of paranoid delusions?

Moir and Turner say this chilling tale will keep people on the edge of their seats.

"This show is just thrilling, from the beginning right to the end. It's really going to keep audiences guessing and on their toes," Turner said. "They're not going to know what to expect next or who to believe."

"The performances are just wonderful. We've been in rehearsals for a couple of weeks now, and what we're seeing from the actors is just really blowing us away. I think the audience is going to be delighted by the performances."

"I think that's something that we have figured out how to really do well over the years of doing community theatre ... something we have gotten quite good at is finding the comedy in the midst of drama, in the midst of tragedy."

FACEBOOK.COM/LOOKINGGLASSPRODUCTIONS

Looking Glass Theatre brings "See No Evil" to the Kenmor Theatre June 9-10.

"And the audience needs that," added Moir. "Hitchcock always said you can't just keep the suspense building through the whole thing. You need to give the audience a moment to breathe."

See No Evil is on stage in Steinbach this weekend before coming to Morden's Kenmor Theatre June 9 at 7 p.m. and June 10 at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m.

Tickets are $30 at the door (cash only).

Applications being accepted for Suncatch Plaza

Street closed for community events until September

By Lorne Stelmach

The City of Morden is getting some community interest in making use of what has been dubbed Suncatch Plaza.

The seasonal closure of a half block section of Eighth Street downtown for use as a community gathering hub began last week, and the city is inviting applications to make use of the space.

Priority for booking will be given to non-profit and community organizations, Mayor Brandon Burley noted, and the farmers market and Suncatch Sounds concert series will also be priority events.

"Right now, it's on a first-come, first-serve basis as far as booking it, but it's also free for people to use to gather informally," he said. "We've had a good amount of interest from people wanting to book the space and inquiring about it."

"We've been watching very closely over the last number of years with Suncatch Sounds and the farmers market ... and we were keen to see what kind of energy and attraction there was in bringing people downtown. We saw a buzz around them," said Burley. "Our goal right now then is to create opportunity for more programming and perhaps even move some of the programming we do right now in other places into that area."

The decision to close off part of Eighth St. between Stephen St. and the back lane to the south from now until September is being done on a trial basis.

"The potential for it right now is very wide open ... and it will become what the community wants to make of it," Burley said. "The city will guide it in some respects."

"In terms of food trucks, there's no immediate plans right now in terms of engagement," he noted. "We are working to create kind of a menu board for takeout from local restaurants so people can have food delivered into the suncatch area."

The mayor noted there are some restrictions on the space: no additional infrastructure can be added beyond what is now there, and there is no option for a liquor licence aside from what events like the Suncatch Sounds obtains for its gatherings. And of course there are requirements to obey the city noise bylaw and properly clean up after events.

"In terms of the logistics, our goal in the first year is to make sure that anything that can be set up can be taken down in half a day," Burley added. "The city is committing some extra resourcing to beautify that space this year, so it will have an enhanced aesthetic appeal."

"With more visibility we think there will come more engagement ... and council and, I think, other community groups are interested to see what kind of uptake there is."

"One of the stated goals of this council is the revitalization of the downtown core," Burley said. "It also brings community together ... there's a lot of opportunities."

"At the end of the season, we will be looking at whether or not we were able to increase the vitality of the downtown core."

Bisons beat Orioles 3-2

Manitoba Junior Baseball League season begins

By Lorne Stelmach

It's been mixed results for the Pembina Valley Orioles and Altona Bisons in the early going of the MJBL season.

Both teams were 1-2 going into action on the Victoria Day holiday after the Bisons edged the Orioles 3-2 last Wednesday.

Altona scored the winning run in the bottom of the eighth inning, while Connor Cory allowed only two hits and struck out 10 in seven and two on thirds innings. For the Orioles, three pitchers combined to allow seven hits with Owen Goertzen taking the loss on the mound.

Earlier, the season opening doubleheader weekend saw the Orioles split their pair with the Elmwood Giants, who took game one 13-2, but the Orioles rebounded to take game two by a score of 5-3.

"We started well the first game then we let one inning get away on us. We rallied in the second game and rallied to win it," said coach Dan Giesbrecht.

"WE ARE LOOKING TO FIX SOME OF THOSE LITTLE GLITCHES THAT WE DID HAVE AND BE WELL PREPARED."

"I think overall any time you can come up with a split with Elmwood it's a good day.

"Our guys responded very well. We have some things to learn, but we worked on a few things at practice, and we hope to keep improving as this season progresses," he said.

"There was some strong pitching and some good offensive skills ... our defense was good for most of the games. We are looking to fix some of those little glitches that we did have and be well prepared."

Meanwhile, the Bisons dropped both games against Interlake opening weekend, with the Blue Jays winning 11-1 and 5-3.

"We were just a little rusty. We knew we would be, given it was the first time for a lot of the guys swinging a bat, facing live pitching. We were just a little off, but we know we will get better," said coach Curt Letkeman.

"Even though we lost both games, hits were pretty even between the teams for both games," he noted. "It just was a case of they happened to get their hits when the bases were loaded, and we happened to strike out with the bases loaded. I think both of those games could have easily been two wins instead of two losses."

Letkeman sees the team continuing to improve, as they saw in the game against the Orioles.

"We're confident that once our guys get a few more at bats and just a few more innings pitched, we'll be fine," he said. "We've got pretty much the same team we've had the last two years, so we're going to have really solid pitching, once we get a couple guys back from college."

On Monday, the Bisons fell to Winnipeg South 7-3 and the Orioles lost to the St. James A's 2-1.

The Orioles visit Winnipeg South this Friday and then host Interlake for a doubleheader Sunday.

The Bisons hosted St. Boniface Wednesday and visit Carillon for a doubleheader against the Sultans Sunday.

Winkler Storm 1 fall 6-0 to NKMB Saints

By Ashleigh Viveiros

The Winkler Storm 1 are still looking for their first win of the season, having dropped a 6-0 decision to the NKMB Saints in Winnipeg last week.

The loss followed a 5-1 defeat at the hands of Luso Canadian CCS the week before in the team's season opener in the Manitoba Major Soccer League's Premier Division.

It's a rebuilding year of sorts for the Storm, and the first one in a few years with some real stakes, notes coach Chad Bergen.

"I know the Storm have struggled the last couple of seasons, and COVID hasn't helped because there hasn't been any promotion or demotion or anything of that sort."

The league for the last two seasons pushed pause on the usual year-end promotion/demotion tradition, in which the bottom two teams in a division move down to the next and the top two move up.

But now that teams are able to practice and play without restrictions, promotions and demotions are back, which means the Storm need to earn their seat at the Premier Division table.

"If we win, we stay. If we come in last place, we drop down to Division 1," Bergen said.

That said, winning isn't his driving focus this summer—Bergen's goal for the season ahead is to create a team culture focused on building relationships and ongoing skills development.

"My hope is more development based than win based, because I want to see these guys play where they belong," he said. "So if we do struggle this season and we get chopped off to Division 1, then I'm perfectly fine with that, because that's where we belong.

"As far as development goes, then we can actually help the players develop at their level. And as they improve, hopefully they can earn their way back up to Premier."

The Storm next take the field against Lions FC in Winnipeg Thursday night.

They host their home opener Sunday, June 4 against Sporting Club Mosaic. The game starts at 5 p.m. at the 15th Street field.

Rocking W charity race returns to Carman

Proceeds going to support South Central Cancer Resource

By Ashleigh Viveiros

Last year's inaugural Rocking W Rick Wiebe Memorial Charity Barrel Race was a such a success in Carman that organizers are bringing it back there once again. The event takes over the Dufferin Ag Society Fairgrounds June 16-17.

"We're making a permanent move to Carman," says Rocking W Barrel Racing Productions CEO Dusty van der Steen, who notes the charity race—which has run for years but returned post-pandemic with a new name—has simply outgrown her family farm. "To host the number of people that come to compete and to watch, we just don't have the room anymore.

"Carman's facility is fantastic. The arena is great, there's barns and parking, the campground is there," she says, adding the ag society and the community gave them such a warm welcome in 2022 that they knew it would be the right fit moving forward.

This year they're super-sizing the weekend with a few other competitions on top of the charity race, including a Dash for Cash Slot Race and the Rocking W Open 4D.

"We wanted to have more stuff going on here," van der Steen says. "With the price of fuel and the cost of everything these days, competitors were telling us they wanted to have an opportunity to travel once to compete in more events."

With 100 entries, the slot race is set to have a payout of $26,000.

"It's a chance to win a lot of money," says van der Steen, noting there aren't many events like this in our neck of the woods. "So we're excited to be one of the first in our area with this."

Those two events take place on the Friday, June 16 (the slot race at 1 p.m. and the barrel race at 7 p.m.). The Rick Wiebe Memorial Charity Barrel Race then runs on the Saturday, June 17, starting at 1 p.m.

Last year's charity race raised near-

In addition to the annual charity barrel race, Rocking W is also hosting a slot race and an Open 4D June 16-17.

ly $29,000 for South Central Cancer Resource, and van der Steen hopes to hit—and possibly exceed—similar heights this time around.

The race is named in memory of her late father, who lost his battle with cancer in 2020.

"I know he'd be proud of me for doing this and supporting South Central Cancer Resource, as they really are a key support for cancer patients and their families while they're going through treatment.

"They don't have any government assistance. They rely on fundraisers like ours," she adds of the agency, which offers support programs and educational resources to cancer patients across southern Manitoba. "So we're very happy to support them so they can do what they need to for local patients."

Full details about all three events, including competitor registration information, are available online at www.rockingw.com.

Admission for spectators is free, but bring some cash along to take part in the silent auction and enjoy chow from the food trucks.

Teen mentorship program comes to Southern Manitoba

By Ty Dilello

Morden's Danselle Neufeld has been working quietly behind the scenes preparing her new Teen Mentorship program which is set to debut this summer.

Teen Mentorship was created in response to the need for healthy and interactive activities in the local communities for teens and tweens.

"My goal with Teen Mentorship is to build confidence and resilience in our future leaders," said Neufeld. "This will be done through group workshops and one-on-one mentorship."

Low self-esteem is a thinking disorder in which individuals view themselves as inadequate, unlovable, and incompetent. Once formed, this negative view permeates every thought, producing faulty assumptions and ongoing self-defeating behaviour.

High self-esteem protects youth from anxiety, depression, pressure and stress. In addition, studies show that Social Emotional Learning (SEL) positively impacts youth by giving them tools to navigate life, such as self-awareness, self-management, social awareness, relationship skills, and responsible decision making.

"In order for our youth to be successful, confident adults, it is important that they have access to support and resources," said Neufeld. "It is our goal and passion to be able to teach SEL in my programs to both middle and high school-aged kids."

Teen Mentorship is a safe and non-judgmental place that's inclusive of everyone.

"Mentoring can hopefully help with stress, self-confidence, schoolwork, substance use, body image, relationships and many other common issues such as anxieties and loneliness brought on by social media," said Neufeld. "One-on-one coaching can be a valuable space to figure this stuff out so that you can live your best and most fulfilled life."

Neufeld has over ten years of experience working as administrative staff and a special constable for local police services, helping callers in distress and high-risk situations. She also has over eighteen years of experience inspiring students and other music teachers with Valleyfield Music Studio. In addition, she has several years of experience volunteering for the Morden Youth Justice Forum.

"Helping people is my passion, and these experiences have inspired me to create a safe place where teens and tweens can be themselves."

Teen Mentorship hosts Summer Wellness Camps in Morden for teens from July 31 to Aug 4 and Aug 14-18. The registration deadline is May 12.

Father-son cyclists continue cross-Manitoba trek

By Lorne Stelmach

A father and son duo with a passion for cycling have been busy traversing the province over the last couple of years as a lead-up to their ultimate adventure.

The end goal for Josh Vosper and his father James is to cycle right across Canada, but they are enjoying the ride right now as well as documenting their journeys.

"My dad and I have always had a passion for biking, and we've always talked about doing these bike trips before," Josh said last week as they looked forward to another leg that brought them to the Morden-Winkler region over the long weekend. "Another thing to is we really wanted to showcase our country. That was always one of the main things we wanted to do."

Calling the town of Plumas home and going to school in Gladstone, where he graduates this spring, Josh and his father over the last five years have been riding across the Prairies on their bikes.

Along the way they have been documenting their rides on video, filming what they are calling The Mega Manitoba Movie for their You Tube channel From Here 2 There.

The Mega Manitoba Movie playlist has well over 50 episodes and counting as they continue to edit and upload footage from their trips throughout the province.

In the summer of 2022 they focused most of their bike rides in the Interlake region, including stops in Ashern, Steep Rock, Arborg, Riverton, Hecla Island, Gimli, and Winnipeg Beach.

They are now going further through southern Manitoba after having previously hit Miami and Roland in 2021 and Elm Creek, Fannystelle, and St. Claude in 2022.

This year they've ridden in the Portage area and plan to swing through Steinbach next after their ride in the Pembina Valley.

It's not surprising to James that his son is so keen to take on this challenging adventure.

"We used to live in Saskatoon, and when Josh was extremely young he just loved biking. We would bike, when he was maybe four or five years old, literally around the entire city ... and then after we were done, he would be saying, 'Let's do that again.'"

"So from a very young age he just had this desire to go very, very long distances on his bike, and that kind of developed into thinking about biking all across Canada."

Over the last

Father-son duo James and Josh Vosper were in Morden-Winkler last week as part of their goal to cycle across Manitoba and, eventually, all of Canada.

two years they have largely stayed closer to home in Manitoba. Part of that was thanks to the pandemic, but they also got some sage advice from a loved one.

"My mom had said well, try Manitoba first ... and then see how that feels so you can kind of get an idea of how the doing the whole country would feel," Josh recalled.

"It was just something I've really enjoyed doing," he added, noting "it's really special because the time we have together is amazing ... all the joking, the fun we have ... it's such a unique experience, and I really enjoy the time we get to spend together."

"It's also nice to visit all of these communities in Manitoba and showcase the communities to other people."

"We really enjoy visiting the communities and try to go to local restaurants or see the attractions," added James. "Meeting people in the communities is actually one of the things I enjoy the most about the bike ride."

"It's not only when we visit a community physically in person on the bike trip," he added. "We have this online community where we'll try to post the video on the Facebook page of that community, and then we get dialogue going with people who watch it."

There obviously needs to be a lot of thought and preparation put into it each time they venture out somewhere.

"It's just going out biking as much as you can," said Josh. "We have an exercise bike, so it's even just biking on that to maintain yourself throughout the winter."

"We're a little more prepared now. We've got extra equipment, all the tools we need, so that at least we can get to the next major centre," noted James, who recalled one especially "desolate trail" that took them to Moose Lake, but it was so rough they had to cut their day short.

And how far they can get at any given time is quite variable depending on the local conditions.

"It depends on the terrain and the day. If you're biking in the mountains, you're not going to get that far, but if you're biking in the prairies, you're going to go further, and it also depends if you've got a headwind or a tailwind," said Josh.

"It really depends on all the weather conditions. That would really be the major factor," said James, who noted they also need to work within what is available for holiday time, so they will often have to break up trips over time.

"I think one of our longest days was about 225 km ... on a good day, if there's very little wind, you can probably get 200 km plus in," he said. "I remember on another day we were going into a wind that was maybe 70 kph in Saskatchewan ... in one hour I think we covered 24 km. But when the wind picked up, it took us four hours to do the exact same amount because the wind was so strong. We actually had to stop our ride that day because we were walking faster."

"On those days, it can feel discouraging, but you've got to just push through those days," Josh noted.

All their experiences to date buoy their spirits in contemplating their cross Canada adventure, where they hope to begin in British Columbia, biking across the mountains, prairies, Canadian Shield, southern Ontario, Quebec, and the Maritimes until they get to the eastern most point of North America: Cape Spear Lighthouse National Historic Site.

"I think it definitely does encourage us to take on Canada," Josh said. "That was kind of the goal from the start."

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Public Notice Regarding a Local Improvement Plan – By-Law No. 2303-23 for the Water Treatment Plant

The Council of the City of Winkler has scheduled a public hearing at Winkler City Hall, 185 Main Street, Winkler, MB on the 13th day of June, 2023 at 6.30 p.m. to the present the following local improvement plan:

Local Improvement Plan No. 42:

The City of Winkler water treatment plant expansion and upgrade will increase plant capacity from ~42L/s to ~113L/s. This will be accomplished by replacing the treatment process with more greensand filtration and two new reverse osmosis (RO) trains with higher recovery rates. The objective is to increase RO recovery from the current 70% to at least 90%. The expansion will also include a new 1.4ML above-ground glass lined storage tank that will match the existing tank in dimensions and features. Estimated construction cost of the WTP is $13,000,000, less $5,000,000 from Provincial funding. The net amount estimated to be $8,000,000 to be financed over a period of fifteen (15) years at an estimated interest rate of 8%. The annual maintenance cost associate with the local improvement proposed herein will be covered under the City of Winkler Utility Operating Fund's annual budget. The annual payment of $934,636.36. will be raised by the portioned value of all assessable property in the City of Winkler as a mill rate.

A written objection may be filed with the City Manager, at 185 main Street, Winkler, Manitoba, prior to the commencement of the hearing. At the hearing, Council will hear any potential ratepayer who wishes to make a presentation, ask questions or register an objection to the local improvement plan.

All objections, written or verbal, must be filed prior to the adjournment of the hearing and must include the name, address and property description of the person filing the objection and the grounds of their objection.

Copies of the local improvement plan are available at the City of Winkler office at 185 Main Street, Winkler, MB, and on the municipal website at www.cityofwinkler.ca.

Dated at the City of Winkler this 12th day of May, 2023, and issued pursuant to Section 318 of The Municipal Act.

John Mark Tyler
1953 - 2023

It is with great sadness that the family of Mark Tyler announce his passing on Monday, May 8, 2023 with his family by his side.

He leaves behind his beloved wife of 32 years, Ruth (nee Klassen); his children, Kimberlee Kroeker (Brian), Joshua and his grandchildren, Brooklyn, Scott, and Dallas as well as his father, Wayne and siblings, Coleen, Garry, Duane, and Lynette.

He was predeceased by his mother, Donna (2021), one brother and one sister.

Mark was born in Stratford ON, to parents, Wayne and Donna Tyler. He grew up in Stratford, ON, lived briefly in Regina, SK and then lived in Ontario with his wife and children until they moved to Winkler, MB in 2005. Mark loved God and his family deeply. He greatly enjoyed spending time with his grandchildren and serving his church as a deacon. He had a very kind and wise spirit. He will be greatly missed.

Memorial service will be held at 2:00 p.m. on Saturday, May 27, 2023 at the Harvest Christian Fellowship in Plum Coulee.

The family would like to thank the medical staff at Boundary Trails Health Centre for their exceptional care and compassion.

Ask the Money Lady

Dear Money Lady, what do think about reverse mortgages – I own my home but only have a widow's pension and OAS to live on. Now that everything is a little more expensive, I am finding it really difficult to live and pay my bills. Verna

Dear Verna – sounds like you are asset rich, (own your home) but cash poor. A reverse mortgage could be an option.

Reverse mortgages have their place as a viable equity product and there are two primary lenders in Canada that offer them: Home Equity Bank and Equitable Bank. Most of the time this product is sold through a mortgage broker and is designed to meet the need for aging homeowners that cannot qualify for a traditional home equity loan or line of credit because they no longer work or can't make the monthly payments. This type of equity-take-out loan allows someone to access a portion of the value of their primary residence without selling it or making monthly payments to repay the debt. Now before you get too excited, let's discuss the pros and cons of this product.

To be eligible for a reverse mortgage you must be 55 or older and own your home. The matrix for qualification is based on three criteria: your age, home value, and location. Of course, the amount provided by the lender will be higher if you live in an urban center as opposed to rurally, and you can choose to get a lump sum payout or have a scheduled payment setup. There are many different types of reverse mortgage products with some that are fully open and others that are locked in. The interest rates range from 7% to 11% compounded annually and repayment is due upon your death, when you sell the home, or if you decide to end the contract and pay back the loan in full. The setup and cessation fees are quite high and of course you will need to do this through a real estate lawyer because a lien will be placed on your property for the loan. Some additional fees could involve prepayment penalties if you pay off the mortgage before it's due and independent legal advice requirements. Some initial start-up fees can be added to the balance of your loan, (which will incur additional interest over the life of the product), but others may need to be paid up front, to be deducted from your payout.

Obviously, the pros to reverse

mortgages are that you don't have to make regular loan payments and you can turn the value of your home into cash without having to sell it. The cons would be that it is quite costly to do so, with interest rates so much higher than most other types of mortgages and secured lines of credit. The biggest drawback I see with this product is that the equity you hold in your home may go down over time as you accumulate more and more interest on your loan. The other problem is that when you die, your estate must repay the loan + interest + fees within a set period of time, regardless of how long it takes to settle your estate, leaving the onus on your beneficiaries.

I know there are many retirees that have considered this option. It is definitely an option to "stay and play," but I must caution you on the compounded interest component. Interest is continually added to your loan each month and tacked on to the principal balance. Each month, interest accrues on a larger balance, meaning you are basically paying interest upon interest. If you are looking to this product to shore up your financial resources so you can stop working, pay off credit card debt or travel and enjoy life, I would suggest you either sell and downsize your home or look to a conventional lender with lower lending rates, (rates for a reverse mortgage average 9% - 14%). Think of this product, not as an added benefit to owning a home, but as a tool of last resort to be considered in your older years, when every other resource or option has been exhausted.

Good Luck & Best Wishes,
